DEMONSTRATOR

“D” SUSAN SPRIGG HIGHLIGHTS

Doing art is the most incredible, unexplainable feeling. It takes your soul to a place suspended in time where creativity is channeled into the concrete. This is an experience everyone should discover in one form or another during a lifetime” -Susan Sprig

Susan Sprigg, who has been commissioned to paint President Jimmy Carter and baseball legend Tommy Lasorda, started her art career in the 70's as a freelance artist. She moved quickly from newspaper illustration to magazine. Susan was referred to Manning Silver, an exclusive Beverly Hills and Rodeo Drive clothing designer; she became his premier illustrator. Her work appeared in Harper's Bazaar and Vogue magazines and other industry publications.

Taking time out to raise her son, Susan yearned to paint. Returning to art as a fine artist who loves to share the thrill of making art, Susan started teaching art and opened Sprigg Gallery. The Sprigg Gallery evolved into the Sprigg Institute of Fine Art where Susan has gathered together great talent to inspire great art in others.

“At the demonstration for Associated Artists, I will share the processes my portraits go through to achieve individuality, and the joy and energy of creating. I always thought of myself as an Artist. I only recently truly became one. The difference is that great feeling we all get when we paint becomes the indescribable vibrancy of spirit. It mingles with the paint and becomes union with it. It's more than being in the zone, it's humming in the zone,” says Susan.

ROSEMARY IMES

Rosemary Imes has been attracted to art since early in life. She formalized this interest by pursuing studies at Otis Art Institute and Parsons School of Design, and by taking every art related class at Pasadena City College. She has been inspired by colorist Victor LaFica and others while attending workshops to stimulate her artistic spark. Teaching art at Maranatha High School in Arcadia is also a part of her rich art background.

Having a broad scope of interest in media, Rosemary has tried many things: stained glass, leatherwork, ceramics, and graphic art. This has led to her current passion--portraits in pastels and prisma pencil. She enjoys expressing the human face, and refers to recent work as her "old lady series". These portraits feature women of a certain age wearing hats. At this time Rosemary is taking a pastel portrait class at the Pasadena School of Fine Arts.

Rosemary and her husband Jerry now reside in LaVerne, but have also lived in Pasadena. They recently returned to Southern California after spending the past twelve years in Ohio .

Besides being a member of the Art Association of the Inland Empire, Rosemary is a member of East Valley and Mid Valley Associations as well as groups in Ironton, Ohio, West Virginia, and was voted "Graphic Artist of the Year" by the Kentucky Creative Arts in Ashland. Her work has been exhibited in local shows, museums and in private collections. Rosemary is currently preparing for The San Gabriel Show and is actively negotiating gallery representation.
