GEORGE BLANCHARD

George Blanchard has been interested in art for most of his life. It was not until 1979, however, that he became active in oil painting. His earlier training was that of an engineer, which provided him with the basics of drawing—especially perspective and projection drawing. His first medium was pencil with extra detailing done in ink.

A graduate of the University of La Verne, he has taken art courses at the University of California Riverside. Other coursework includes studying with local artists Cathy Shefer and Betty Hook, as well as workshops with Nancy Kasten and Mary Carole. George is an active member of the Underground Painter's group which meets regularly in Upland, California.

George's subjects range from landscapes and structures to portraits and figures, as well as florals, boats and seascapes. His favorite subjects are structures and figures in action. His choice of mediums has expanded, and much of his recent work has been done in graphite, colored pencil, and ink. George feels that this development can be attributed to his earlier training in engineering.

In 2004 he began to stretch his interest in the musical side of the arts. He is taking weekly lessons on the violin. George has been a member of the Associated Artists since 1993 and has served the board of directors in the capacity of editor, treasurer, and as liaison for the board in obtaining the Association their new home at the Goldy Lewis Center. He has also been involved with the Fontana Art Association and has participated in their annual shows. George's work appears in collections in California, New Jersey, Virginia, Florida, Illinois, Colorado, Washington, and Arizona. It is his desire to present works of art for other people's enjoyment.
